Great team work is about compelling purpose, engaging tasks and great relationships

The South Auckland Intermediate and Middle Schooling Association is privileged to host the NZAIMS Annual Conference 2012.

- Learn together through a range of engaging activities, including world-class speakers and school visits.
- Address what sets intermediate and middle schools apart, and explore these differences in order to improve our practice.
- Look at how we can create active and engaging learning environments for both students and teachers.

Bring your leadership team for three inspiring days in New Zealand’s Super City.

Keynote speakers include:

John Shackleton has coached numerous world-class sportspeople. His own thwarted early attempts at sporting success led him to study Sports Psychology, and he has since applied the techniques and ideals gleaned there to his business and personal life. As well as running several highly successful organisations he has been a business coach to leading CEOs and senior executives.

With a background as a teacher, writer, researcher, and coach, Jennifer Garvey-Berger helps individuals and teams to transform themselves and their organisations. She has published articles and books on leadership, coaching, adult development, and individual and organisational change. She also teaches coaches and consultants about these ideas at universities all over the world.

Gavin Grift is Director of Professional Learning with Hawker Brownlow Professional Learning Solutions. He has dedicated himself to working with schools that are facing the challenges of high stakes accountability for high levels of student learning. His success as a teacher, school leader, change consultant, author and professional learning provider illustrates the effectiveness of his experience, knowledge and skills.

Greg Ward (MC) Since 1998, Greg Ward has worked with corporates, associations, event companies, PCO’s, large scale public events and a wide range of radio, television, multimedia and film organisations providing his myriad services. Greg will keep us in order, inform and entertain.
